

Joanna Ortiz
New Brunswick

8th grade
Woodrow Wilson Elementary School

Environmental Essay

The best way to communicate with the public, both residents and businesses, regarding recycling is to tell them how it impacts not just them but the whole world. Recycling started about 4 decades ago, and it has changed how mankind's future may end up. People need to know that by just throwing a few bottles in a blue bin, or even a few pieces of paper, it can save millions of lives and many households. Recycling a single aluminum can, could save enough energy to power a TV for 3 hours. One recycled plastic bottle would save enough energy to power a 60-watt lightbulb for 3 hours. People have a wrong concept of recycling. They believe that if they don't recycle once nothing will happen. Well, imagine if everyone thought the same thing? What might happen?

One creative way that we can encourage people to recycle is that we can make it a contest and someone in town will receive a prize. Every 3 months we can set a desired goal, and, if the town reaches it, we can have a party at a nearby park to celebrate the great accomplishment. Recycling doesn't have to be boring. We can create new and interactive ways to recycle. For the teens we can place a basketball hoop around the recycling bin. This will make it more enjoyable for them to make shots and still help save the planet. We can hand out flyers and place posters around town telling them the many benefits recycling. Recycling is not just for us or our planet. We can use recycling as a way to create new things that will affect our society in valuable ways.

Recycling can make your work life more efficient. Recycling in a competitive way can stimulate the productivity and the relationships between the employees. If you place them into groups they will interact with each other and build a better and stronger bond. They could have a common goal. Whichever group collects the most recyclable items by the end of the month, will receive a prize. The bonds they create will allow them to become closer so more ideas will be shared and more creativity will be expressed. Recycling can be way more beneficial than just helping the community look better. It can bring people together and help save the planet.